Published June 23, 2014

The AIKanna LED grow light is virtually a 1000-lights-in-one device that will give growers the versatility and flexibility that no other indoor light offers. It gives growers the ability to access 1000 combinations of lights to suit the growing needs regardless of the growing stage of the plant. They named the new LED grow light “AIKanna” after a genus of herbaceous plants that includes over 60-70 species belonging to the Boraginaceae family. Almost like the AIKanna blossoms, the AIKanna light has 1000 different settings.

Most indoor growers must move their growing plants from a cloning chamber to a vegetation room and then to a flowering room, because each chamber or room is equipped with fixed lighting suited only to the plants’ growing phase. The lighting needs for cloning or propagation differ from the lighting needs for growing the plants and also differ from that needed for flowering. During the process by which growers move their plants from one room to another room for a change in lighting, plants are vulnerable to shock that may take up to a week for the plants to recover and adapt.

The AIKanna LED light is based on a unique system of dialing any of 1000 combinations of various light wavelengths and intensity with the help of pre-programmed smart drives. The light eliminates the need to move plants to different lighting chambers or lighting rooms. The growers need only change the light settings to change the lighting to suit the needs of the growing plant.

So, imagine changing your clone chamber to a vegetation room and then to a flower room with just one light — with the AIKanna LED light you can, and without subjecting the plants to the shock of relocation. If you choose to continue moving the plants from room to room then all you need to do is standardize your lights for all the rooms. You will reduce energy usage and eliminate shock to the plants. The result is 30-50% energy savings and up to 14 days of growth without shock.

As an LED-based light, the AlKanna light is more energy efficient and longer-lasting than high intensity discharge (HID) lights or fluorescent (CFL) lights.

With simple easy-to-use dials, growers can easily master the AlKanna with the turn of dials to desired numerical settings. By adjusting the light combinations to strain specific settings, cannabis growers can maximize their yields while reducing their operating costs. The versatility and benefits of the AlKanna light far surpasses all other lighting systems.

RECENT NEWS

DENVER, CO, Apr 22, 2014 (Marketwired via COMTEX) -- Novagant, Inc. is pleased to announce that the Company has acquired full proprietary and intellectual property rights to a newly invented light device that can provide programmable and adjustable lighting intended for the indoor growth and cultivation of plants but with a specialization for cannabis plants. This invention will have one of the best pound per watt yield in the industry.

This is the first of many new products being delivered to the Company by its new Vice-President, Michael Thornton. The Company expects to seek patent protection before unveiling more details regarding the new invention.

Generally, the invention is designed to be universally mountable with any indoor grow rooms and boxes, and also designed to provide sufficient lighting to maximize yield for cannabis cultivation, with a substantial reduction in both energy consumption and heat output. Licensed growers can expect to grow more plants with less electricity costs and with a cooler-running light.

CONCLUSION

NVGT is bringing true innovation to the cannabis cultivation market space. The old ways of growing cannabis are being phased out with new technology such as the Alkana LED lighting. The growth in the cannabis market space has been phenomenal and many innovative products using cannabis are being introduced. From dispensaries to medicines and paraphernalia companies involved in this market are springing up everywhere.

Investors should remember that all the excitement in the cannabis space starts with the marijuana product itself. Quality marijuana plants will translate into superior cannabis products. Plants that yield higher levels of the ingredients needed for medicines and recreational use will be the plants most sought after.

The NVGT lighting products will help growers transform their crops into the high quality plants they desire with reduces costs, whether they are part of a grow collective or an individual growing herb for personal use.
